The sinking of the three British armoured cruisers, the Aboukir, the Hogue and the Cressy, of 12,200 tons each, by German submarines, is the big news feature in this morning's Berlin newspapers. Details of the battle are not yet available.

The news was received with particular pleasure, as it served to reconcile the German sailors with the policy imposed upon them of higher strategy under which the officers and men of the fleet are chaffing despite all admonitions of patience from the newspapers and public opinion.

BREEDER'S JOURNAL

The last issue of the Swine Breeders' Journal of Indianapolis, Ind., makes the following mention of the 'Spring Hill" farm sale of Durocs, October 5, 1914: "Spring Hill Farm" herd of Durocs, a standard herd, in Ohio, at Washinfiton C. H., is owned by Hugh K. Stewart. It is among the leaders in public sale circles and has distributed a class of stock highly appreciated by buyers.

The offering prepared for this sale includes a classy lot of yearling gilts, thirty-three head in all, which will average 300 pounds. These gilts are sired by Fancy Top Col., by Morton's Top Col., Advance Instructor and Defender II by Defender; as strong a trio of breeding boars as one will find anywhere. The twenty spring gilts are as bright prospects as the older gilts; are sired by Col. S. Jr., and Prince Protection. Sam Morton looked over Col. Jr., and said 'He is King of Cols. over again. A better Defender.' He is a wonderful good prospect, is sixed by Col. S. 17943, who is King of Col. His dam is S. German and France In Population. The population of the German empire at the end of the first half of 1914 is put at 67,812,000. This compares with 66.981,000 in the previous year and shows an increase practically the same size as was recorded from 1912 Franco-German war, France had a population of about 36,000,000, only 5,000,000 less than Germany. In 1911 ics. she had less than 40,000,000, and the number has declined since then. Thus her increase in forty-two years has been less than 3,000,000 against an increase for Germany of 26,000,000.

Return to Political Trickery

The attempt to make political capital of an editorial, which appeared in the Dayton Daily News, reflecting upon traveling salesmen, is a resort to old-time methods.

The editorial was a gratuitous and uncalled for insult to Waiting and fearing till daytime, the traveling salesmen and Governor Cox, who owns the Dayton Daily News, so characterized it and immediately after he saw it, ordered the editorial writer responsible for the editorial to make a public apology over his own signature, which was done.

It is unfortunate that the editorial was written and published, but the attempt to hold Governor Cox responsible for it by his political opponents is despicably small and is certain to result, as such tactics always do, as a boomerang upon those back of the attempt.

Naturally, the traveling men of the state felt aggrieved over the publication of such an editorial, but the sober second thought has already come to them and they see the injustice of holding Governor Cox personally and politically responsible, when he knew no more about it than did the traveling men of the state themselves.

No matter what political views the individual traveling salesmen of Ohio may hold, their intelligence and their sense of justice is offended at such a patent attempt to injure Governor Cox politically on account of the personal act of another.

While the political opponents of the Governor have given the widest publicity to the editorial and have been adroit and active in their attempts to connect him with the publication, their flagrant unfairness is shown and their true purpose revealed in the fact that no effort has been made by them to give publicity to the Governor's frank statement and to advise the public of the prompt action which he took as soon as he learned of the publication.

No matter what political principles one may hold, he should not permit himself to be influenced by such obsolete and discredited methods of campaigning. The political opponents of Governor Cox have his political record, which includes a host of activities, upon which they can join issue with him. But to pass all this long list of official acts without serious question and seize upon the act of another individual and to falsify and attempt to mislead and arouse prejudice is not only infinitesimally small, but an insult to the intelligence of the men they seek to mislead as well.

There is much bigger business to engage the attention of !. the opponents of the Governor than the editorial in the Davton News, for the publication of which he was in no way responsible and about which he knew nothing until it appeared in

The men responsible for this attempt to injure Governor Cox politically should have known that it would re-act and that the very men they sought to inflame, when the sober second thought came, would feel, justly, indignant at being classed with those who could be led astray by resort to such methods.

Return to Political Trickery

The attempt to make political capital of an editorial, which appeared in the Dayton Daily News, reflecting upon traveling salesmen, is a resort to old-time methods.

The editorial was a gratuitous and uncalled for insult to the traveling salesmen and Governor Cox, who owns the Dayton Daily News, so characterized it and immediately after he saw! it, ordered the editorial writer responsible for the editorial to make a public apology over his own signature, which was done.

It is unfortunate that the editorial was written and published, but the attempt to hold Governor Cox responsible for it by his political opponents is despicably small and is certain to result, as such tactics always do, as a boomerang upon those back of the attempt.

Naturally, the traveling men of the state felt aggrieved over the publication of such an editorial, but the sober second Cruelty fierce and insatiate. thought has already come to them and they see the injustice of holding Governor Cox personally and politically responsible, when he knew no more about it than did the traveling men of the state themselves.

No matter what political views the individual traveling salesmen of Ohio may hold, their intelligence and their sense of justice is offended at such a patent attempt to injure Governor Cox politically on account of the personal act of another.

While the political opponents of the Governor have given the widest publicity to the editorial and have been adroit and active in their attempts to connect him with the publication, their flagrant unfairness is shown and their true purpose revealed in the fact that no effort has been made by them to give publicity to the Governor's frank statement and to advise the public of the prompt action which he took as soon as he learned of the publication.

No matter what political principles one may hold, he should not permit himself to be influenced by such obsolete and discredited methods of campaigning. The political opponents of Governor Cox have his political record, which includes a host of activities, upon which they can join issue with him. But to pass all this long list of official acts without serious question and seize upon the act of another individual and to falsify and attempt to mislead and arouse prejudice is not only in finitesimally small, but an insult to the intelligence of the men they seek to mislead as well.

There is much bigger business to engage the attention of ! the opponents of the Governor than the editorial in the Dayton : News, for the publication of which he was in no way responsible and about which he knew nothing until it appeared in

The men responsible for this attempt to injure Governor Cox politically should have known that it would re-act and that the very men they sought to inflame, when the sober second thought came, would feel, justly, indignant at being classed with those who could be led astray by resort to such methods.

Traveling men, as well as others, may have reasons, sufficient for themselves at least, for supporting or opposing the candidacy of Governor Cox, but it is not likely that any of them will be influenced to oppose his re-election by this feeble attempt to invoke old-time political methods. Condemnation of such conduct is not confined to party lines. Cough Remedy. When a cough develops from a cold, says the Uplift, it Is many times difficult to overcome it. A most effectual home remedy is inhaling the smoke of burning rosin. The powdered rosin is placed on the heated surface of a steel plate or bottom of a pan. The patient bends over the cloud of smoke, inhaling it with long breaths. It will rarely cause the patient to cough. The effect is soothing, and relief is felt almost immediately. The smoke must be inhaled not less than three times a day at regular intervals. Camphor ice well rubbed into the chest will greattient. If this simple method of treatment is followed persistently it will rout the most irritating cough. It has many times prevented the development of tuberculosis, and there are patients who claim that tuberculosis had been stopped and the lesions healed with this treatment.

New York, September 23.-Roger Peckinpaugh, acting manager of the Yankees, has a thankless job. His elevation to his present position was due to the sudden resignation of Frank Chance. Peckinpaugh, who plays shortstop, has been the field captain since he came from Cleveland last season, and he has shown good judgment and a knowledge of the game. But at that it is certain that his reign as manager will be brief. He will probably be in charge only until the season closes, October 7, and he has little chance to distinguish himself.
